dear sir: i heard you on wnbc a few nights ago, and am amazed at your ability to retain your temper after such scurrilous attacks. i should ordinarily assume that your book would be open to attack on many grounds, but if those two amateur law-sharks could find nothing better than high-school patriotism and cheap courtroom tactics to use against you, you must have something after all. i should ordinarily wait until such a book turned up in th library, but as yours may not do so because of its private publication, could you advise the price? i should also be interested to learn whether an author or publisher pays or gets paid, or neither, to get on that program. incidentally, a telegram referred to 'warren crying' and it seemed to baffle you as much as the others....there was a report that he was weeping when he emerged from the whit house and said:"you will never get the facts in yr lifetim
